Walker Hotel Tribeca has created the perfect excuse to stay inside for a long staycation this Labor Day weekend.

Running through National Video Game Day, September 12, the hotel is offering three newly created gaming suites—with experiences including a room of arcade classics, a Nintendo 64-themed room for 90s nostalgia, and a futuristic VR room featuring an Oculus headset.

For those who want to make a night of it, the hotel's “It’s All Fun and Games” package offers overnight guests exclusive access to the game rooms at a time of their choice, as well as:

- Two complimentary appetizers from the Walker Tribeca lobby bar (available Tues.-Sun. from 4pm-10pm)
- A mini polaroid camera perfect for snapping pics of your high scores
- Upgrades and late check-out upon availability

The gaming suites are open to the public, with tickets starting at $25 for a 1.5-hour reservation window.

Package rates start at $270 and can be booked here, while public tickets are available here.
